The pink monkey is a great computer programmer with many animal friends.

He loves to play games and write stories for kids of all ages!

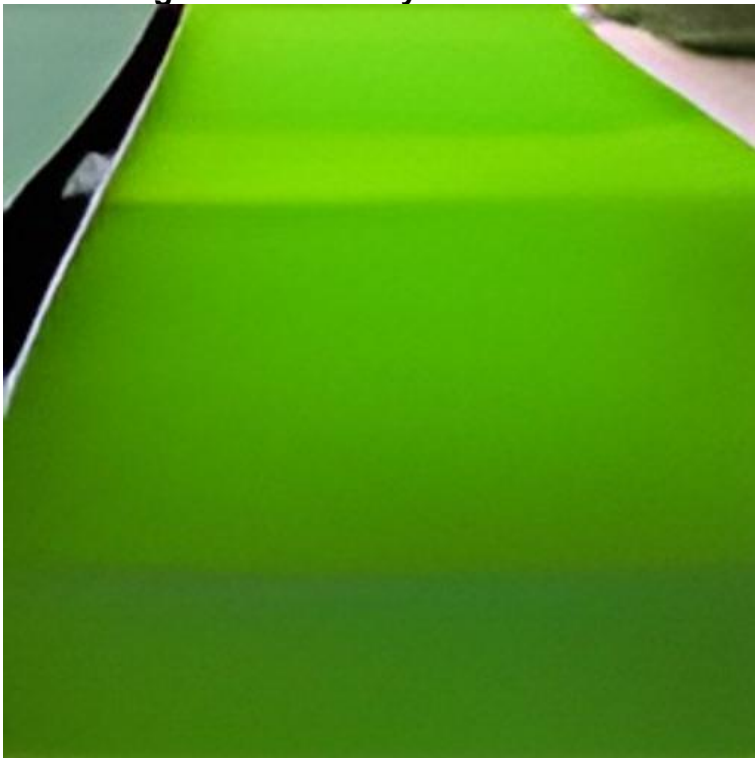

His latest book, "Babar's Adventures" was published in 2013 by Random House Children's Books (a division Penguin Group USA).

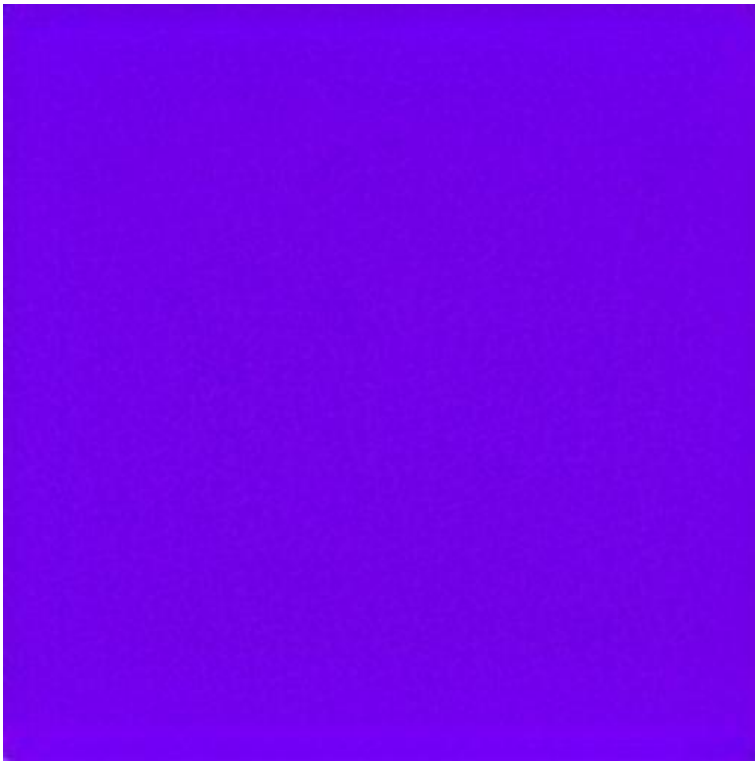

It tells the story about Babbar who goes on an adventure through Africa while trying not get eaten or shot at too much...but mostly getting chased around trees more than once as well....it has lots going wrong but it also ends up being fun along way there so if you are looking forward reading something that will make your heart smile this one should be right down yer alley

I'm really proud he wrote such wonderful words himself - they were perfect!!

And his illustrations just made them even better ;) The best part?

This little guy can't read yet :(

So we're hoping when/if ever my son does learn how good luck charm books work out then maybe someday soon some other kid might find him again :D
